Congressional District(s): Applicant and Project: 18th

Martins Ferry City School District, a member of the BUCKEYE (Bolstering the Uses of Computer Knowledge to Enhance Youth Education) Consortium will use RUS grant funds to provide a model educational system for eight school districts in rural Belmont County in eastern Ohio. The BUCKEYE Program proposes to address sub-standard Ohio State proficiency test scores by using RUS grant funds to purchase video conferencing and other equipment. Teacher isolation will be countered by creating virtual communities of learners among the teachers. Online courses and videoconferences for teachers will compensate for a lack of substitutes and limited teacher professional development. With the addition of selected instructional programming, all 11,000 students in the Belmont County school system will be affected. Students will have access to high quality programming not currently available. In addition, students will have access to a global community in which they can link not only with peers in other Belmont County school, but also with students around the world. Each of the participating school districts will receive VTEL videoconferencing at elementary, middle school and high school classrooms. A select group of teachers at each level will have access to laptop computers that will allow participation in communities of learners and more effectively integrate technology, especially distance learning technology into classroom.

Ohio University Southern Campus; Ironton, OH

$482,518 Grant

Area(s) Served: Lawrence Counties communities of Ironton, Chesapeake, Coal Grove, South Point, Willow Wood; Scioto County communities of Portsmouth, McDermott, Lucasville; Pike County communities of Piketon; and, Ross County community of Chillicothe

Congressional District(s): Applicant 6th / Project 6th and 7th

The Ohio University Southern Campus will use RUS grant funds to create a distance learning network that links eight K-12 schools with two universities in rural Ohio. This economically disadvantaged area suffers from high unemployment rates, high poverty and low educational achievement among adults. Throughout the project service area student achievement in primary grades is significantly lower than the national average. The partnership formed through this network will enhance educational opportunities for students, strengthen the skills of faculty and student teachers, and increase the academic achievement of all students in the areas of math and science. The consortium sponsoring this grant is bringing four partners to the project that will provide excellent resources to ensure systemic change in education in this rural area. Each of these partners will handle specialized areas of education such as professional development plans and resources for special needs students in the districts. The consortium is truly excited about the amount and quality of the resources that will be involved in this project. The project will reach 7,200 and will provide resources for approximately 300 teachers.

2001 Awards:

Ohio University Southern Campus; Ironton, Ohio

$468,000 Grant

Area(s) Served: Adams, Lawrence, Ross and Scioto Counties

Contact: Dr. Eric M. Cunningham; (740) 533-4608, Fax: (740) 533-4590

Congressional District(s): 2nd, 6th and 7th.

Ohio University Southern Campus, Shawnee State University, and eight local school districts in four Ohio counties propose a distance learning project that will benefit nearly 250,000 people. The academic needs of students in these small communities will be enhanced through telecommunications links with other schools and distance learning networks. The project proposes video conferencing capability and wireless laptop systems for the university and the high school sites. Students will use technologies that are typical of high-tech businesses and industries, thereby gaining confidence in their abilities to participate and compete in challenging careers. They will also be able to access new resources and participate with other area classrooms, partner colleges, state and national networks, and interactive web sites. Practicing teachers will be able to participate in professional development activities, and will link to student teachers' practice sessions to incorporate the modeling of appropriate techniques. An area-wide virtual community of teachers and learners will be established to promote innovation in teaching and the sharing of best practices. This will result in a better-educated, better-prepared workforce that will contribute to local economic development.

1995 Grant Award:

Adams County Hospital

$349,700

Ohio

West Union

The project will link the hospital and four high schools to the University of Cincinnati Medical Center. The system will provide health care professionals, teachers, students and other rural residents with access to a wide range of continuing education and advanced placement college courses. Also, it will provide medical services, such as trauma care, follow-up diagnostic and evaluative consultations and emergency medical consultations 24-hours a day.

1994 Grant Award:

Hocking Technical College

$200,000

Ohio

Perry County

Hocking College, a technical education known for its educational satellite programs, will implement a two-way interactive video distance learning link between Nelsonville and New Lexington. The compressed video will be distributed through a dedicated fiber optic line. Educational services include courses in Nursing, Business, Accounting, continuing adult education, and other technical programs. The system will also allow all students and community residents access to online information from a wide range of digital networks.
