Southern writer explores Tutwiler family

LIVINGSTON- The University of West Alabama continues its 175th anniversary commemoration Thursday, July 29 as Southern humorist and Tutwiler cousin Nan Graham provides historical anecdotes about the family of Julia S. Tutwiler, the first president of the University, in her lecture, "The Tutwiler Legacy: One Family, Many Missions."

Graham, the great-great-niece of noted educator and reformer Julia Tutwiler, will speak at 6 p.m. in UWA's Callaway Schoolhouse.

Although Graham lives in Wilmington, N.C., her roots run deep in Sumter County. She spent her childhood summers in Livingston, visiting her grandparents and other members of the Tutwiler family. UWA's cafeteria is even named for her grandfather, a former professor. She returns each summer to UWA to research her family and collect ideas for her books.

"I call myself a gatherer," she said. "I search for family letters, photographs and other keepsakes from both the Tutwilers and their cousin Martha Young to archive at UWA's Julia Tutwiler Library."

Graham, who has published two collections of essays, is a biweekly commentator for WHQR Public Radio in Wilmington since 1995. Her on-air tag line,

"a lifelong Southerner," reveals the focus of her humorous commentaries on growing up and growing old in the South. A graduate of Tuscaloosa High School, the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill and the Citadel, Graham currently teaches honors courses in Southern literature at the University of North Carolina at V. UWA will host other events in the county to celebrate the University's establishment, culminating in Homecoming activities on October 16. For more information on Graham's lecture or anniversary events, visit www.uwa.edu or call 3833.

Christ is in You

Usually when we use the word mystery, we think of a story that has an ending we try to solve before we get to the last page of the book or last five minutes of the movie. When the Church uses the term mystery, it goes much deeper. For the Church a mystery is a truth that is incomprehensible to the reason and knowable only through divine revelation. St. Paul reminds us in Colossians that we have received Mystery, the Mystery that Christ is in us. Sadly when it comes to this Mystery many people, and many times we ourselves, are clueless.

We go about our day, so busily engaged in doing this and that we overlook the purpose for our actions, we overlook the reason for our being, we forget about the presence of Christ. Like Martha in the Gospel we are concerned with doing instead of being. Martha was busy doing this and that in her valiant efforts to prepare for Jesus. Mary, her sister, was concerned with being, with being with Jesus.

A number of years ago, someone came up with a great idea as a guide for making decisions. The idea was WWJD, What Would Jesus Do? People still wear wristbands with WWJD to remind them to choose the course of action that Jesus would choose. I think that is wonderful. But I want to propose an even better guide. Instead of focusing on Jesus out there somewhere, focus in on the presence of the Lord right here, right now, in your lives, in that of your family and others, in the Church, in the world.

When we make the time to be in His presence, when we join Mary of Bethany in just enjoying the Lord in our lives, we will find ourselves walking a road less traveled, a road of serenity in the middle of hectic activity. When we choose to nurture the presence of the Lord within us, we, like Mary, will be-choosing the better part.

BBB warns car shoppers about online dealer scam

ARLINGTON, VA - Better Business Bureau is warning car shoppers to beware of websites offering too-good-to-be-true deals on repossessed cars. BBB has heard from people across the country who thought they were buying from a reputable dealer online but were actually sending money to scammers posing as legitimate, already-established community dealerships.

"Because scammers essentially steal the identity and good name of real auto dealers, car shoppers will think that they're buying a car from a reputable business," said Stephen A. Cox, President and CEO of the Council of Better Business Bureaus. "The truth is, they're being sold a bill of goods by a coordinated, agile and in all likelihood overseas outfit of scammers."

Most recently, one Memphis auto dealer, America Auto Sales received more than 1,000 calls from consumers across the country who had shopped for a new car on www.americautosales.com thinking that it was the website of the Memphis dealership. The phony website used the name, address and contact information of the real dealer.

The fraudulent website claimed to sell repossessed cars at prices well below market. Buyers were instructed to wire a deposit—as much as $5,000—to an individual rather than the company, which, according to the phony website, "helps us avoid taxes legally." The balance was to be paid upon delivery at the consumer's address within five days.

After paying the deposit, victims called the real dealership to arrange delivery of their car. Some customers even showed up at the lot to pick up the cars they had "bought" on the bogus site.

BBB recommends that car shoppers look for the following red flags when shopping for a car online: The prices are too good to be true. The dealer only communicates through chat or e-mail—never by phone. The dealer only accepts payment by money wire transfer.

If you have been the victim of a fraudulent auto dealer online, notify your BBB at www.bbb.org and the Internet Crime
