Un tornado toca tierra al norte de Miami sin causar heridos

Miami (EEUU), 2 ago (EFE).- Un tornado tocó hoy tierra en la localidad de Tamarac, al norte de Miami, y derribó árboles, causó daños en los techos de varias viviendas y afectó a los semáforos de la zona, aunque no se registraron heridos.

"No tiene ningún vínculo con 'Emily'. Es solo que la atmósfera local está inestable", aclaró Roberto García, meteorólogo del Servicio Nacional de Meteorología en referencia a la tormenta tropical que tiene en alerta a varios países del Caribe y que amenaza con llegar a Florida.

García explicó a medios locales que el tornado podría haberse desarrollado por fuertes tormentas eléctricas interactuando una con la otra.

El Servicio Nacional de Meteorología emitió un aviso de tornado para la zona este y centro del condado de Broward, en el sur del estado de Florida.

Chris Montalvo, de 22 años, declaró a NBC Miami que estaba manejando cuando vio la espiral del tornado en el cielo: "Estaba un poco nervioso, era la primera vez que veía un tornado en el sur de Florida".

Como él, habitantes de la zona se apresuraron a enviar a medios locales y colgar en redes sociales impresionantes imágenes del tornado a su paso por esa zona del norte de Miami.

Preliminary Notice of Possible Impact on Important Resources

TerraFuels
 Galveston County, Texas

The USDA, Rural Business-Cooperative Service is considering an application for loan guarantee pursuant to Section 9003 of the Food, Conservation, and Energy Act of 2008 received from BBVA Compass Bank, for TerraFuels, LLC to construct and operate a Post Sorted Municipal Solid Waste (PSMSW) Biorefinery to be located in Alvin, Galveston County, Texas (Latitude 29° 25' 8" N Longitude 95° 11' 30" W). If impacts to wetlands or waterways are unavoidable a permit will be submitted to the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers and compensatory mitigation will be required. The purpose of this notice is to inform interested parties and the public, of possible impacts to wetland, waters of the U.S., or prime farmland and to request comments concerning the proposal.
