Welcome to the Repayment Income online training module presented by USDA’s Single Family Housing Guaranteed Loan Program.
This training will highlight key areas of section 152 of the Regulation and Chapter 9 of the Handbook to clarify how Rural Development considers income types and scenarios for loan repayment purposes and determining your applicant’s purchasing power.
Repayment income is utilized to calculate qualifying ratios to determine if the applicant may be a successful homeowner. 3555.152(a) provides important guidance for lenders to follow regarding repayment income:

- Repayment income is calculated only for individuals who will be parties to the Note and the income must be stable and dependable based on the history of receipt.
- Lenders should review an applicant’s previous two years of employment and training/education to determine if the income source is stable and dependable. Time spent in college, technical school, and career-based certificates may be included towards requirements for annual and repayment income. Please note that an applicant may still be eligible even when there is not a full two year employment history.
7 CFR 3555.152(a)

(2) The lender must establish an applicant’s anticipated amount of repayment income and the likelihood of its continuance for at least the next 3 years to determine an applicant’s capacity to repay a requested mortgage loan in accordance with §3555.151(h)(1).

(3) Income may not be used in calculating an applicant’s ratios if it is from any source that cannot be verified, is not stable, or is likely not to continue.

- Repayment income should be anticipated to continue for at least three years from the date of loan closing.
- There should not be evidence of the income source ending within the first three years of the mortgage debt.
- Income sources that cannot be verified or documented, are unstable, or have no history of receipt may not be utilized for repayment purposes.
Some income types are not included in repayment income, and they are listed in 3555.152(a)(4).
• Chapter 9 of the technical handbook provides additional guidance to support 3555.152(a).
• Repayment income must support the repayment of the proposed mortgage debt plus the applicant’s additional debts.
• Repayment income amounts may differ from annual and adjusted annual income determinations.
• Income used for repayment must be stable and dependable.
• Nonoccupant cosigners are not permitted for USDA guaranteed loans.
• The income source must be documented and there must be documented evidence of earnings.
• The lender must analyze gaps in employment.
• An applicant with declining wages must be carefully reviewed.
• Inflated or overstated repayment income is a prime contributor to loan delinquency.
• The key to successful homeownership is stable and dependable repayment income. No one benefits from placing an applicant in a home that they cannot afford by inflating wages or relying upon secondary income sources to meet acceptable ratios.
To better assist with income review and documentation, Chapter 9 includes Attachment 9-A: “Income and Documentation Matrix.”

The matrix was designed to assist lenders and USDA to more efficiently locate many income sources, annual income adjustments, and asset guidance.

The matrix lists income types in alphabetical order and indicates how to consider each income type for both annual and repayment incomes.

This training will concentrate on repayment income.

“Documentation Source Options” will list the options to properly document the income type.

Every documentation item listed may not be required.

USDA allows multiple options to provide flexibility to lenders when documenting income sources.
• The lender will document monthly repayment income on page 5 of Form RD 3555-21.
• Repayment income will include the stable and dependable income of parties to the note only.
• Include the monthly income of the applicant and any co-applicants. Remember to document your calculations and show the numerical information used in calculations.
• Enter the total monthly repayment income on line 15.
• The preparer of the form must complete this information and sign the form. An electronic signature is acceptable.
• This total must match the “Monthly Repayment Income” entered on the “Income and Expenses” GUS application page.
• More information regarding repayment income can be found in Chapter 9 of the 3555 handbook.
Here are some useful tips to keep in mind when reviewing repayment income:

- GUS does not determine stable and dependable income. GUS assumes the data entered by the lender is accurate.
- Therefore, the lender must review the applicant’s employment and income history and determine what income is stable and dependable per USDA guidelines.
- Incorrect data entries will render the underwriting recommendation as invalid.

• Nancy graduated last year from nursing school, passed her license exams and accepted a position with Mercy Hospital where she has been employed for 13 months.
• She earns base wages, shift differential, and overtime.
• She is projected to earn $102,000 this year.
• The lender may use this year’s projected earnings when determining repayment income.

A. TRUE B. FALSE
B. TRUE

- Income sources have been received for more than 12 months.
- Overtime income has been received for at least one year and will be presumed to continue.

The answer is True. A one year history at the time of loan application is required for base wages and overtime. In regard to overtime pay, underwriters must analyze OT for the current pay period as well as YTD earnings. Significant variances must be analyzed and documented before the income may be considered stable and dependable.

• The lender may include Joe’s earnings from both jobs when averaging repayment income.

A. TRUE     B. FALSE
False. Lenders cannot average income from a previous job (where the applicant is no longer receiving pay) with a new position. The new position is the current source of income. Repayment income may only be calculated from current earnings. Comparing previous employment with current employment does however allow the underwriter the ability to determine income continuity.
